

Rules for media ownership should not be changed to allow corporate monopolies -- there is great danger to the public's right to know the truth and the real possibility of manipulation of public opinion. Allowing ownership of our media to be held by a few corporations is a further step away from a free and open society.